Dear Danny,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for organizing the workshop in Dublin last week and preparing the framework for a new market growth. The arrangement was perfect for our specific needs, I am going to replicate this idea in different similar countries.

I particular appreciated the important location and the fact that there was the right number and variety of customers from our key sport-markets. This group of people demonstrated a high interest in our main concepts and products and I was able to discuss with everyone of them specifically about their needs and environments.

After the meeting I had the possibilities to develop some business and personal relationships with these persons. Moreover, thanks to your effort, we were already able to sold a couple of systems to them.

Thanks again! I am sure this kind of action will be replicate in the future and will generate good direct and non-direct business.

Your faithfull
